THIS MONTH ON LOCAL-GOVERNMENT FEEDS

Introducing new staff on social media

A new face at city hall is news. Three welcome posts that did it well.

IN HER OWN WORDS

PROMOTED FROM WITHIN

LET THEM SAY HELLO

Hand the post to the new hire.

Janesville, Wisconsin let its new city manager, Rebecca Houseman, introduce herself in her own words on the day she was sworn in, with photos from the ceremony.

SAY WHAT THEY BRING

Name the experience residents can count on.

By unanimous action of City Council, The City of Farmington Hills is pleased to announce Karen Mondora as new city manager.

Since January, Karen has served as acting city manager, guiding day-to-day operations and helping advance key community priorities. With more than a decade of service to the City and extensive leadership in public services, infrastructure, and strategic planning, she brings deep experience and a strong commitment to our community.

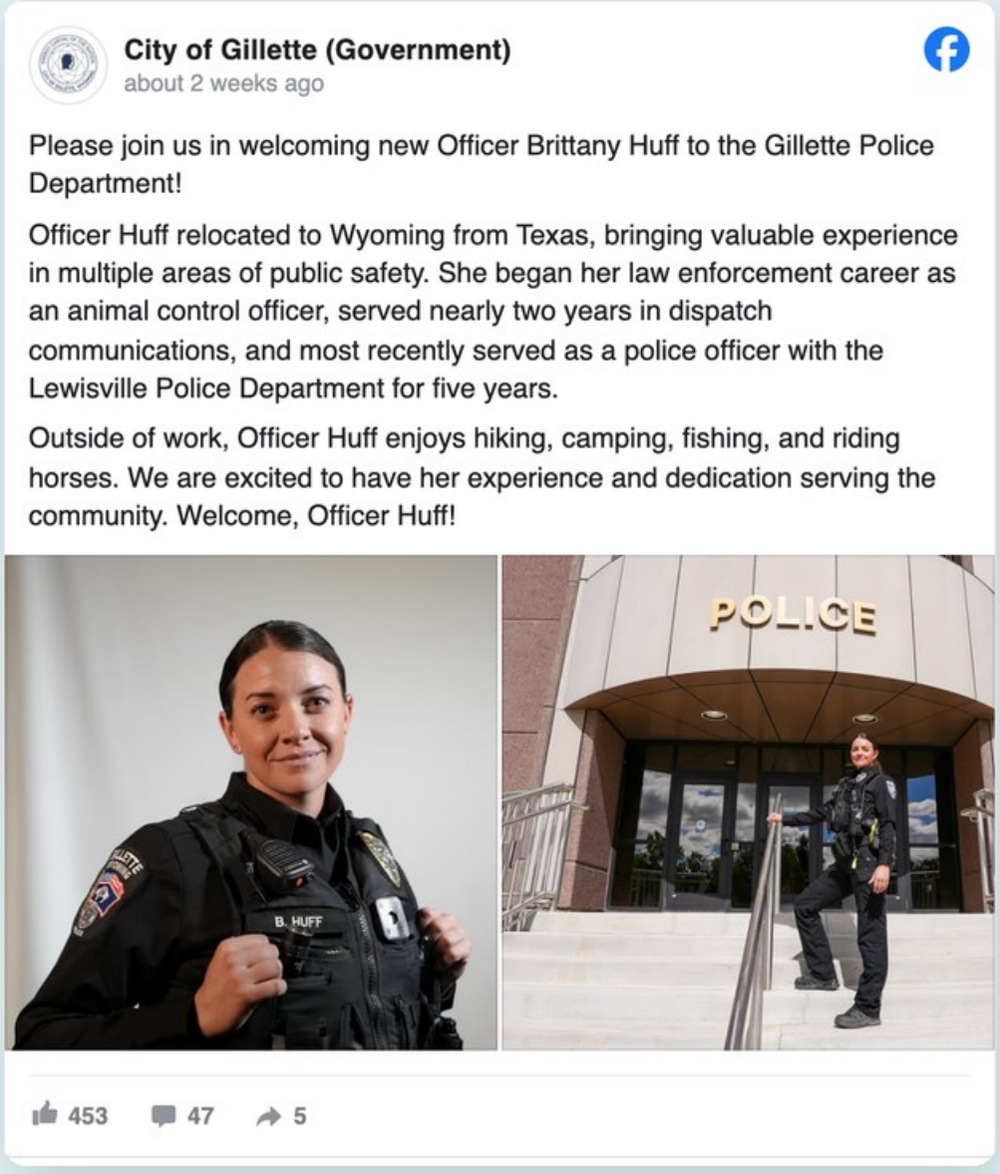

We look forward to her ... See more

196 53 8

Farmington Hills, Michigan announced Karen Mondora as city manager after a unanimous council vote, noting her months as acting city manager and more than a decade with the city.

TELL THE PATH, AND A LITTLE MORE

Give residents a person, not just a title.

Gillette, Wyoming welcomed Officer Brittany Huff with her path from animal control to dispatch to patrol, and what she enjoys outside of work.

BORROW THESE

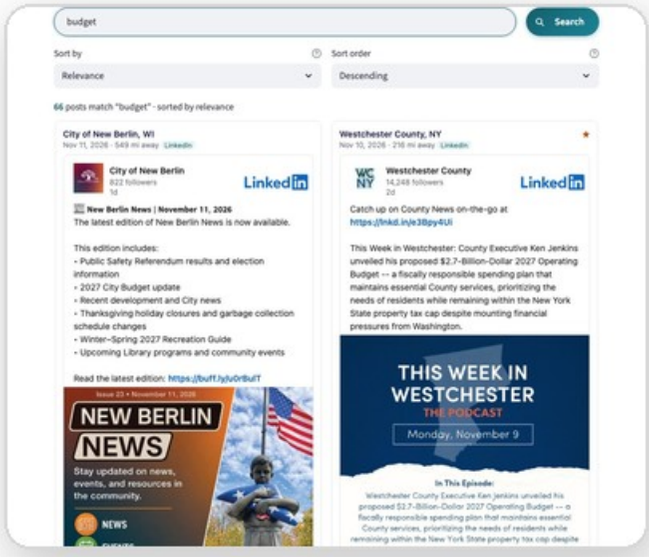

What a good welcome post includes

- A name and a face
  A real photo from the first day or the swearing-in.
- The role, in plain words
  What they do, and for whom.
- The path that led here
  Experience residents can relate to.
- An invitation
  Ask residents to help welcome them.

FIND YOUR NEXT POST

See how other towns introduce their people.

Search what cities and counties post about new hires, retirements, and staff milestones, then borrow what fits.

Start a free trial app.govfeeds.com

GovFeeds