

HOW GOVERNMENTS POST ABOUT

Road and traffic safety on social media.

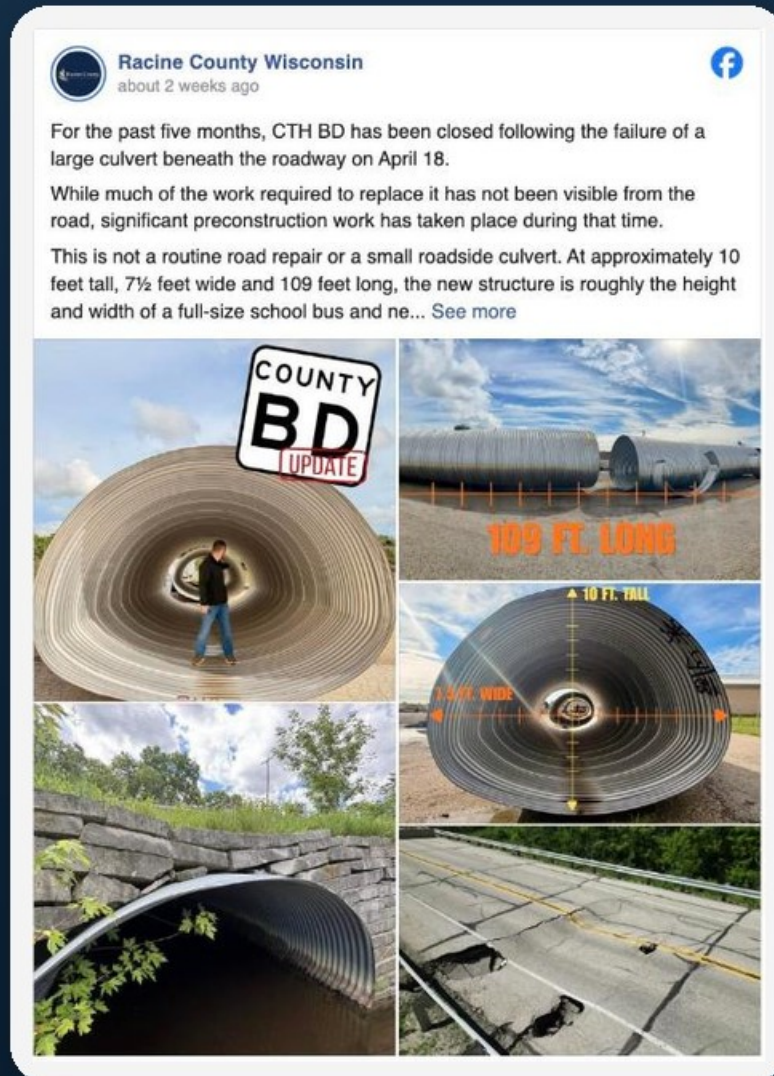

Road and traffic-safety posts beat a page's usual engagement on 59% of pages. The best ones show the work.

Three real Facebook posts →

- Racine County, Wisconsin
- Town of Easton, Maryland
- City of Oberlin, Ohio

RACINE COUNTY · WISCONSIN

Show the work residents can't see.

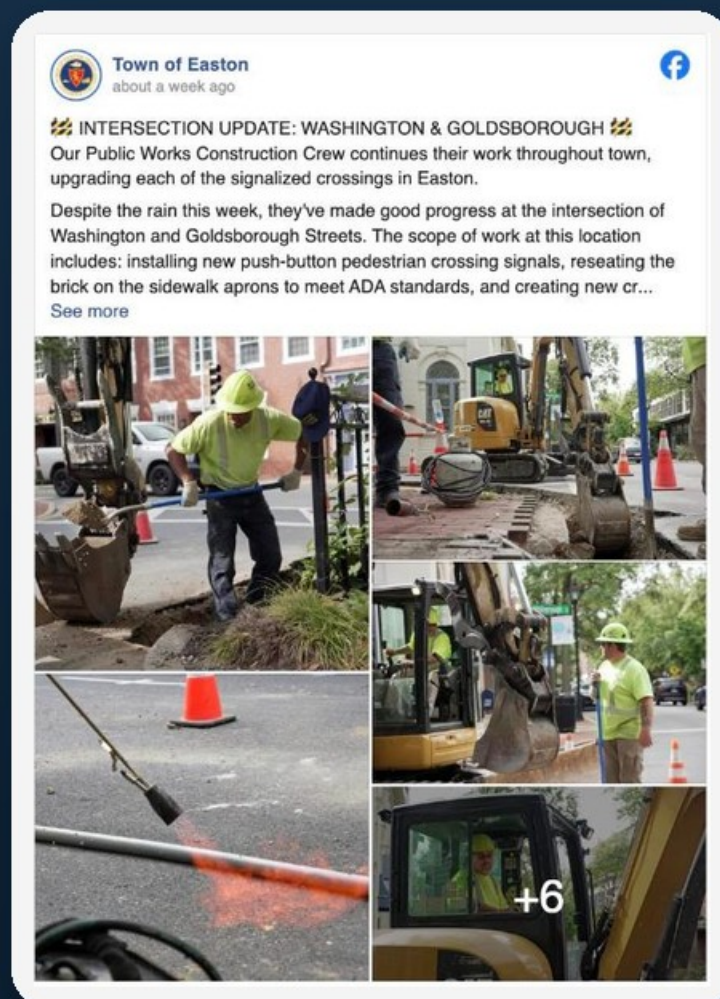

WHY IT WORKS

A road closed for five months looks like nothing is happening. The county explained the culvert, with a person standing inside it for scale.

TOWN OF EASTON · MARYLAND

Show the crew, name the work.

WHY IT WORKS

Photos of the public works crew on the job, and a plain list of what they are building: new push-button pedestrian signals and sidewalk brick rebuilt to ADA standards.

CITY OF OBERLIN · OHIO

Make the crossing worth a look.

WHY IT WORKS

A crosswalk mural by a local artist, credited by name, with thanks to the arts group that ran the grant. Safety infrastructure people stop to photograph.

THE THROUGH-LINE

Make the road a story.

Closures, crews and crossings get attention when residents can see the people and the reason behind them.

Get the weekly GovFeeds Brief:

newsletter.govfeeds.com

GovFeeds