

NEW GUIDE

Your first 90 days on government social media.

What to post, where to post it, and how to tell it's working, from 1.3 million local-government posts.

Three things to start with →

SET A REALISTIC BASELINE

Quiet posts are normal.

There's no published benchmark for what a town's post should draw, so most people compare against a neighbor's best week. Compare against governments your size instead.

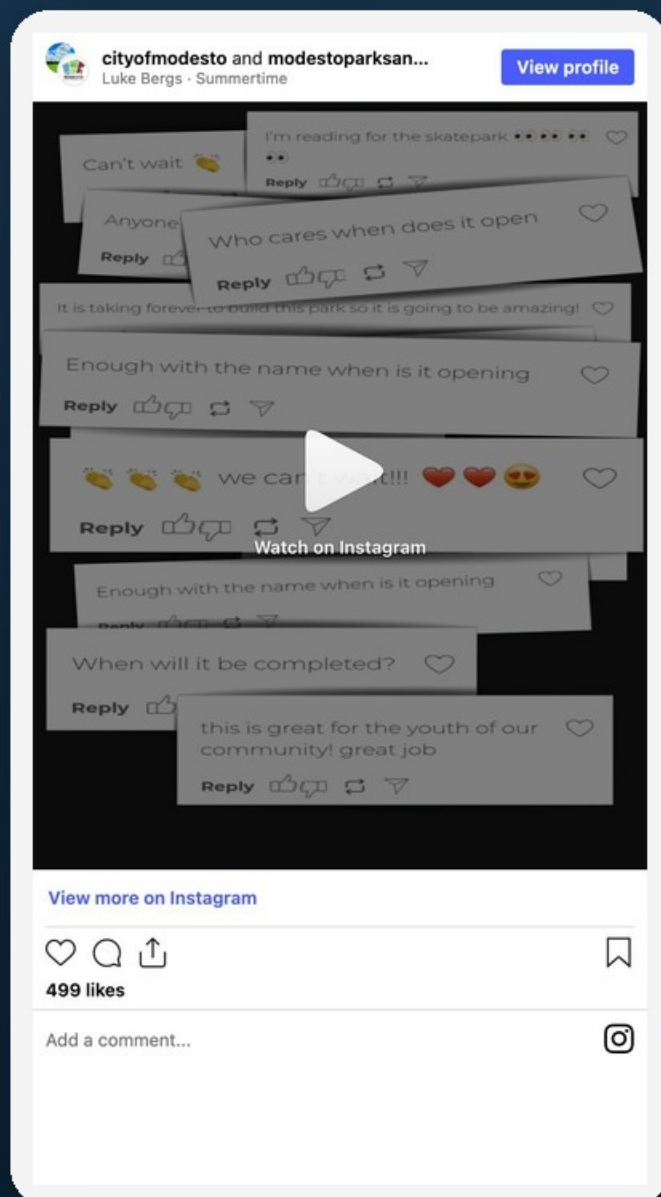

PICK THE RIGHT CHANNEL

Start with Facebook.

It's still where residents are. Among governments running both, the same city's Facebook posts draw far more response than its posts on X.

CITY OF MODESTO · CALIFORNIA

On Instagram, use video.

WHAT TO TRY

Modesto turned residents' impatient comments about a delayed park into a short video update. Most governments still post mostly photos on Instagram.

FREE REPORT

See what's working for governments like yours.

We'll build a free report for your government: what you posted this month, the posts residents found most useful, and ideas worth borrowing from peers your size.

Request yours:

govfeeds.com/free-report

The full guide: govfeeds.com/guides/first-90-days

GovFeeds